Trying Not To Try
The Ancient Art of Effortlessness and the Surprising Power of Spontaneity

Edward Slingerland
£14.99

A deeply original exploration of the power of spontaneity – and why it’s essential to our wellbeing, both as individuals and as a society

Description

Why is it hard to fall asleep the night before an important meeting? Or be charming and relaxed on a first date? What is it about a comedian whose jokes fall flat or an athlete who chokes? In all these cases, spontaneity is elusive. In Trying Not to Try, Edward Slingerland shows us how we can harness its power and become more effective.

We’ve long been told that the way to achieve our goals is through careful reasoning and conscious effort, but recent research suggests that many aspects of a satisfying life are best pursued indirectly. The early Chinese philosophers knew this, and they wrote extensively about how we can achieve wu-wei (oo-way) – an effortless, spontaneous way of being in the world.

Through stories of mythical creatures and drunken cart riders, jazz musicians and Japanese motorcycle gangs, Slingerland effortlessly blends Eastern thought and cutting-edge science to show us how we can embody a spontaneous way of being and live more fulfilling lives.

Reviews

‘Trying Not to Try navigates the confluence of two mighty rivers: the burgeoning science of the mind and the classic wisdom of China’s Taoist and Confucian traditions. This is a thoughtful, grounded book about traditions that should be better known – and more often put into practice – in the West’

DANIEL PINK

‘Slingerland will make you reconsider your approach to everyday life and will challenge you to approach success – and failure – in a new, refreshing and reenergizing light’

MARIA KONNIKOVA

The Author

Edward Slingerland is an internationally recognized expert in both early Chinese thought and the links between cognitive science and the humanities. He is Professor of Asian Studies, Associate Member in the Departments of Philosophy and Psychology, and holds the Canada Research Chair in Chinese Thought and Embodied Cognition at the University of British Columbia. He is the author of Effortless Action (2003) and What Science Offers the Humanities (2008).

Publication Details

Book Category: Non Fiction
Format: Demy Trade Paperback
ISBN: 9780857863478
Ebook: 9780857863492
Rights Held: UKCWxC,neEU,neH